

As a lawyer and supporter of the First Amendment, I support XM Radio's efforts to provide local traffic and weather information. I continue to listen to local radio stations as well for that information, but having alternative sources for the same information isn't a bad thing... it's a good thing. Local radio stations have existed for decades. XM is new. It is XM, not the local radio stations, that deserves any protection you may want to consider. Local radio stations are placed in no danger by XM. In fact, isn't competition what this country is all about?
